learned with regret of the death of Lieut.
John Westfall, which occurred Sunday at the naval hospital in Chelsea, Mass. Lieut.

made many friends in this section. He was taken to the naval hospital about three weeks ago, suffering from influenza.

J. Andrew Wood, a native of Ellsworth, but for many years a resident of Hull's Cove, where he conducted a dairy farm, died Monday of last week in the Eastern Maine regional hospital in Bangor. He had been ill but a few days of pneumonia, following influenza. J. R. Wood was sixty-two years of age. He leaves a widow, two daughters, Mrs. Wayman Liscomb of Bar Harbor and Mrs. Clayton Stanley of Otter Creek, and one son, Olin, of Bar Harbor. A brother, Frank Wood of Salisbury Cove, and two sisters, Mrs.

Harry McFarland and Mrs. Robert Edwards of Hull's Cove, also survive him.

On Thursday, Feb. 6, Ellsworth will celebrate the fiftieth anniversary of its incorporation as a city. A general outline of the program has already been given in THE AMERICAN. A few changes have been found necessary in the details. Hon.
Fulton J. Redman has sent word that it will be impossible for him to be here to deliver the anniversary address. It is hoped that Dr. Everett W. Lord of Boston will deliver the address. The concert in the evening will include solos by Mrs. Mabel Monaghan Swan, soprano, J.
Franklin Anthony, tenor, and Miss Angelina Hayes, harpist. There will be war and peace tableaux. A ball will follow, with Higgins' orchestra, eight pieces. An admission will be charged in the evening.

A case of interest in Ellsworth was tried in the supreme court in Bangor last Wednesday. It was an action brought by W. F. Chute of Holden against Harold P. Carter of Ellsworth for a balance of $500 alleged to be due on money advanced in a wood-cutting operation. Plaintiff alleged that the wood was sold to the Orono Pulp & Paper Co., instead of being shipped to Cumberland Mills as ordered by plaintiff. The defense claimed that the money for the operation was furnished by the wife of the defendant. The jury returned a verdict of $567.44 for plaintiff, the full amount sued for, with interest.
Another Ellsworth case was heard before Justice Philbrook in Bangor Friday.
This was an action of John A. Peters of Ellsworth vs. Isadore L. Halman of Boston to recover on a promissory note for $16,500. The defense was partial payment, and a transfer of real estate.
Plaintiff alleged that the latter was conditional upon sale, and that the property had not yet been sold. Decision was reserved.

Benvenue Granite Co. Case.

Arguments in the equity case of the Sullivan Development Corporation vs. the Philadelphia Warehouse Co., were heard before Justice Dunn in Bangor last Thursday. The testimony in this case had previously been taken out before the late Justice Arno W. King, and the transcript of this evidence has been submitted to Justice Dunn.

The Sullivan Development Corporation is the successor in title to Benvenue Granite Co., which gave a mortgage to the Broadway Trust Co., of New York, to secure an issue of bonds which were pledged to the Philadelphia Warehouse Co. as collateral for an advance. The foreclosure of the personal property was completed, and the plaintiff claims that the proceeds of the personal property, together with sums paid on account, are sufficient to discharge the indebtedness.

The defendants claim that by a sale of the bonds as collateral for the debt, the Warehouse Co. became the owner, for value, of all the bonds, and the trustee, the Broadway Trust Co., is enabled to collect the full amount of the bonds, $250,000.

Hon. John A. Peters of Ellsworth appeared for the Trust Co. and Owen J.
Roberts of Philadelphia for the Philadelphia Warehouse Co.

MID-DAY FIRE.

Odd Fellows Hall, Ellsworth Badly Damaged Monday.

Fire in the Odd Fellows building at Ellsworth Monday did damage estimated roughly at $2,500. The fire started on the ground floor in the back entry, among waste paper and rubbish, and spread rapidly up the stairway to the attic. It had gained good headway when discovered, and before the arrival of the firemen, which was delayed because the fire horse was out of the house engaged on sidewalk work, the fire had reached to the attic.

Once at the fire, the firemen did excellent work, confining the flames to the southwest corner of the building. The flames broke through into the main hall on the second floor, reaching the stage, and also broke through at the corner of the lodge room on the third floor. The rear stairway was gutted. The piano in the lodge room and the drop curtain in the main hall were destroyed.

A large part of the damage was from smoke and water. The water did not get into the lodge room to any extent, and the carpet was not wet. The lodge room was not badly smoked. The main hall was badly smoked, and the plastering is off in many places where the water ran above the ceiling. The hardwood floor in this hall was covered with water during the fire, but men with brooms kept it cleared and it has apparently dried without serious damage.

The water also soaked down through to the banquet hall in the basement, and here also much plastering is off.

In the stores on the ground floor Morrang's garage had many cars stored, and there will be some loss here from water, but not serious.

All the losses are covered by insurance.
The fire at one time had every appearance of being a disastrous one, but good work by the firemen and excellent water pressure saved the building. The Odd Fellows are congratulating themselves that the fire was no worse.

Frank Bradbury Dead.

Frank Bradbury, a prominent business man of West Franklin and well known throughout the county, died last night.
Death resulted from influenza. One of his sons, Henry, died of the same disease a week ago.

Mr. Bradbury was sixty-five years of age. Since early manhood he had been engaged in the stone business in West Franklin. He was one of the contractors for stone for the new Mt. Desert bridge.
He was well known throughout the county, largely through his interest in politics. He was a staunch democrat, and had served on the democratic county committee.

He leaves a widow and four sons—Caleb of Old Town, Charles, George and Frank of West Franklin.

Cape Roster Favors Memorial.

THE AMERICAN's correspondent at Cape Roster, writing in regard to the proposed county memorial to the sailors and soldiers, says:

The suggestion to erect a fitting memorial in Ellsworth to those who gave their lives for their country in this war, meets the approval of all in this section.
Cape Roster has one son who died in France early in the summer, Fernald
Howard, son of Orlando and Emily
Howard, who was killed in action.

HUSBAND SAVES WIFE
From Suffering by Getting Her Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

Pittsburgh, Pa. — For many months I was not able to do my work owing to a weakness which caused backache and headaches. A friend called my attention to one of your newspaper advertisements and immediately my husband bought three bottles of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound for me. After taking two bottles I felt fine and my troubles caused by that weakness are a thing of the past. All women who suffer as I did should try Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. — Mrs. JAS. ROHRBERG, 620 Linn St., N. S., Pittsburgh, Pa.

Women who suffer from any form of weakness, as indicated by displacements, inflammation, ulceration, irregularities, backache, headaches, nervousness or "the blues," should accept Mrs. Rohrborg's suggestion and give Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound a thorough trial.

For over forty years it has been correcting such ailments. If you have mysterious complications write for advice to Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Co., Lynn, Mass.

THE FATHER.

"He that hath seen me hath seen the Father Jesus."
Why do the children fear Him?
They know not the loving heart
Of Jehovah the great and mighty.
In which they have each a part.
They dream that He speaks like thunder.
That a dark frown veils His face.
They shrink from His look of lightning
When they come to the meeting place.
How little they know the Father:
But the Son they have seen and known.
Did He speak to the people roughly?
And had He a heart of stone?
Did He punish the least transgression?
Did He utter the word of forgiveness?
And was He not known to promise
A place He prepared in heaven?

NEW YEAR'S DAY, 1919.

Dear Mutuals:
I have been thinking of you and Aunt Madge all the morning, so to ease my mind, am trying to write you. I got a card from Aunt Madge at Christmas; so she has not erased my name from her book of M. B. names. I have thought she might have. Am glad I still belong. This is rather a lonely day, snowing hard. I am wondering who has loved ones with them to-day. We are alone, but Christmas day our daughter was here—something unusual—and never a dinner tasted better, although it was just a simple dinner, and Hoover would have been pleased with it—yes, even the taste.
I read and read the good letters, and wish I was equal to do the same. Esther, I have been laughed at many times because I thought, as did Aunt Madge, that the angels worms rained down. I hope that someone will write more on the subject. I always move very quickly if I see a snake, and in the opposite direction.

We are very glad the war is over, and when our "boys come marching home" we will realize it more fully. I can remember well when my uncle came home from the Civil war. My father made the supreme sacrifice that so many have made in this past year, and for which we are sorry.
Wishing all M. B. a very Happy New Year,
As ever,
N. L. H.

Dear M. B. Sisters:

It has been a long time since I wrote for our column, but I think I have. The last of October I went to spend a week with my son. I was taken ill with influenza and pneumonia, and did not get home for seven weeks. The first time my doctor allowed me to go to the table, was to eat my Thanksgiving dinner, and it was a truly "glad game" all right.
I have read a great many books, as I have not been able to work very much. I have just finished "Midnight Island." Some of the others were: "The Eagle's Mate," "The Heart of Thunder Mountain," "Homestead on the Hillside," "Whispering Smith" and "The Princess of Mars."
I like what Irish Molly said about shaking hands. I have taken people's hands when they felt like a dead fish. I like a good hearty grip, as if they meant, "I am glad to see you."
Esther, I have often wondered where the worms came from in rain water; have seen them many times.
I hope all the sisters who have boys "over across" will soon have them at home. There are several from this place in France. One has arrived home and others are at Camp Devens.
I know you will all sympathize with "Lina," whose oldest son has lately died in Boston, where he was employed.
I wish you all "A Happy New Year."
VASHTE.

It is good to hear from these two sisters of ours, and to know "Vashti" is recovering from her serious illness. The advice to "take good care of yourself" is almost as common a phrase as "How do you do?" But it means a great deal if only those recovering from sickness keep it in mind and practice it. We are sorry, indeed, for Lina in her bereavement, and the sympathy of all will go out to "Charity" and her family, in the great loss they have just sustained.

Bert Perkins and wife and Thomas Lunt were called home from Bath by the sudden death of their father, Hiram Lunt.

OBITUARY.

Hiram Lunt died Friday, Jan. 3, after an illness of only three days. He went to his traps Tuesday in his usual health. Soon afterward his brother Grant noticed his boat drifting, and upon investigation, found him in the bottom of the boat unconscious. Dr. Tapley, hurriedly summoned from McKinley, pronounced it shock and hemorrhage of the brain. He never regained consciousness.

Mr. Lunt was a hard-working man and a good citizen, honest, just and true in all his relations in life. Quiet and unassuming in manner, he was ever ready to help those in trouble or in need, and was honored and loved by all. His death is a great loss to his family and to the community. He was a member of the Knights of Pythias. He leaves a widow, six daughters—Mrs. Jessie Perkins, Mrs. Valeria Davis, Lula B., Nora E., Marie E. and Winnie A. Lunt, and three sons—Thomas B., Wallace L. and Hiram; also one sister and five brothers.

A Roxbury (Mass.) grandmother writes to Dr. J. F. True & Co., Auburn, Me., saying: "I have always used your Dr. True's Elixir for my children and they are all healthy and well today."

"I put great faith in your medicine and one of my children was dying. The doctor said she could not live until morning and I ran out to the drug store, got a bottle of True's Elixir, was so excited I gave her half the bottle at once and at night I gave her the other half. I thought it's either kill or cure for the doctor says she is dying anyway, but she did not die. She went to sleep, the first sleep for a week, and the next morning she passed two worms, red in color, six inches long. The doctor came to see if she was dead but he ran out pretty quick as she was sitting in her chair eating a bowl of oatmeal and milk. That was twenty-four years ago and now she has a baby, and of her own, seven months old, who is also using the Elixir."

KEEPS WATCH ON SEAMEN'S HEALTH

Uncle Sam Will Take Good Care of His Merchant Crews.

SEAMAN'S BOTTLE IS LATEST

Contains Passports to Good Health by Providing Free Hospital Treatment Anywhere—Days of the Dog's Life Now History.

Washington.—Uncle Sam is getting more watchful of the health of his merchant crews as the great American peace-time fleet continues to grow. The latest innovation of the United States shipping board in the "seaman's bottle," which has now become one of the cherished possessions of hundreds of American seamen.

This little glass bottle, small enough to be carried in the vest pocket, contains passports to good health—printed forms which, when filled out by a ship's captain, will gain admittance for the holder to any United States marine hospital or relief station of the public health service in every important port in the United States. On a foreign voyage the application will provide the seaman with the best medical care, free of charge, on application to the United States consular officer.

At present the bottle is being provided only for men who have been trained for a sea career by the recruiting service of the shipping board, but in the opinion of Surgeon General Blue every American seaman should have one.

It is in port that the new "seaman's bottle," which was originated by Dr. Louis W. Croke, medical director of the shipping board recruiting service, plays its chief part. A seaman in need of medical attention has merely to dig the bottle out of his kit, bring the printed form to his skipper to be filled out, and then go ashore to the nearest federal official.

Free Hospital Care.

The label which bears the imprint of the board's recruiting service informs the seafarer that he is entitled to free hospital care no matter what his station aboard ship. The term "seaman," it says, means not only the men who are employed on deck but persons employed on board in the care, preservation or navigation of the ship, and it even includes those who are in the service, on board, of those engaged in such care, preservation or navigation.

When discharged by the medical authorities the American seaman is given free passage to the port from which he originally signed, unless the articles provide for discharge elsewhere, or if in a foreign port to some port in the United States. He must serve on board the ship on which his passage has been arranged if possible.

The "seaman's bottle" not only will impress upon Americans who are going to sea the privileges to which they are entitled as seamen of the United States but will preserve the certificate and keep it clean.

Years ago, in the days of the clipper ship, and even since that time, the sick or disabled American sailor at sea or in a foreign port had no resource but the charity of his captain or shipmates. Old-time skippers generally prescribed and supplied a blue pill and the crews were not burdened with funds to lend.

Harrowing tales have been told of those dark days of the merchant marine, of men forced to lie for weeks in cramped, foul-smelling forecastles, often beset by rats and without proper food, light, air or clothing.

If the man lived until the ship reached port some sort of care might be provided for him, but hundreds died, were buried at sea; their togs were sold and they were soon forgotten.

Must Carry Medicines.

But the days when the life of a sailor or was a dog's life at best are now history. Every vessel flying the American flag and engaged on long voyages is required to carry a chest of medicines suitable for the treatment of common ailments and injuries. Failure to comply with this law subjects the master or owners of the vessel to a heavy fine.

Scurvy, that scourge of the old days, has practically disappeared from the American mercantile marine because of the liberal supplies of lime or lemon juice, sugar and vinegar that are now required to be carried on every ship on a long voyage and to be given daily to the crew within ten days after salt provisions have been chiefly served to them. In the days of yore "salt junk" was the main item on every fog's bill of fare. This food, consigned to the vessel in barrels, was generally stowed below as ballast and sometimes remained there for a long time before being requisitioned for the crew. This diet, with the lack of fresh vegetables, caused scurvy.

Adequate hospital facilities aboard ship also are provided. The law requires that in addition to the space allotted for lodgings, which must be roomy and well ventilated, all merchant vessels of the United States, which ordinarily make voyages of more than three days' duration between ports and which carry more than twelve seamen, shall have a suitable hospital compartment with at least one comfortable bunk for every twelve seamen aboard.

TO CROSS ATLANTIC

Airplane Manufacturers Make Long-Distance Machines.

Tempted by Big Prizes Offered by Newspapers and Aviation Clubs.

Paris.—Airplane manufacturers are losing no time in developing long-distance machines for transatlantic flights for which tempting prizes have been offered by various newspapers and aviation clubs.

The rumors persist in Paris that a Handley-Page machine has already crossed the ocean, from Newfoundland to Ireland, but that the flight was kept secret in order that the Germans might not know that a machine had been produced which could bomb Berlin. The allies had secret information that the enemy felt perfectly secure about the inability of airplanes to fly that far into the fatherland and get back and had practically no anti-aircraft batteries posted to protect his capital. It was realized that once it became known a plane had crossed the Atlantic the Boche would take the tip and strengthen his defenses at Berlin.

Farman has constructed a quadruple motor biplane equipped with four propellers and driven by engines generating more than 1,000 horse-power, which he believes can negotiate the transatlantic flight. This machine will have an average speed of 110 miles an hour and can carry gasoline and oil for 36 hours. The body of the machine extends the whole length of the fuselage, from the nose to the tail-piece and the crew can walk up and down through the passageway. Multiple wheels make landings easier and safer.

Bleriot has also constructed a bi-motor machine, with two tractor and two pusher propellers, which he believes can fly 2,000 miles without a stop. The Bleriot machine is a bi-plane, but the lower wings are much smaller than the upper, along the lines of the Nieuport chasse model. The Bleriot plane is expected to maintain a speed of 150 miles an hour for 24 hours.

MUSIC CURES SHELL SHOCK

Victims in England Recover Speech Under the Influence of Singing.

London.—Music has been found to be beneficial in the treatment of soldiers suffering from shell shock, and now singing is to be tried on a systematic scale, with the approval of the army authorities.

It has been found that singing has both directly and indirectly a wonderful curative effect and there are a number of cases on record in which a man who, unable to speak, suddenly joined in with the singing and so recovered his speech.

An effort is being made to organize regular singing training in all hospitals where there are shell-shock cases.

Nation-Wide Prohibition.
The federal constitutional amendment for nation-wide prohibition has been ratified by the necessary three-fourths of the states, and will become effective one year from the date the secretary of state issues a proclamation that he has been officially notified of ratification by a sufficient number of states. This may be delayed somewhat, as in states where the question must be submitted to referendum vote of the people, the liquor interests will make a big fight to prevent its acceptance. Opponents of the measure claim that the referendum will be required in twenty-two states. Maine is one of these. The right of referendum will have to be decided by state courts. Nebraska was the thirty-sixth state to ratify the amendment, and Missouri and Wyoming followed a few hours later. Under the terms of the amendment, the manufacture, sale and importation of intoxicating liquors must cease one year after ratification, but prohibition will be a fact in every state much earlier because of the war measure forbidding the manufacture and sale of alcoholic beverages after June 30 until the demobilization of the military forces is completed.

The law will put 233 distilleries, 992 breweries and 300,000 saloons out of business, throw several thousand men out of employment, and cut off from the United States treasury revenues counted upon in the new revenue bill to yield one billion dollars.

PANKAKES IN OSTEND

Correspondents Get First Made
There in Four Years.

Hotel Manager Tells of Sufferings at the Hands of the Germans.

American Press Headquarters, British Front.—The first pancakes made in Ostend in four years were served the other day at the Crown hotel. But the American correspondents got them under false pretenses.

They had had a very good lunch of vegetable soup, roast beef, browned potatoes and peas.

"What have you for dessert?" was asked the exceedingly attentive waitress. Her face fell. "There is nothing, messieurs," she said plaintively. "No fruit, no sweet."

In a moment she was back with the manager, who had been hovering near the door.

"The manager and the chef will be happy to make you pancakes," she announced delightedly. "We got some milk and flour from the British ships today, and are able to make pancakes for the first time in four years." Then she added solemnly: "The manager and the chef will do it, because you are English."

Whoever cooked the pancakes had lost no mastery of the art in four years. The American correspondents were served four pancake masterpieces each sprinkled with sugar. They were so good that we had no qualms later when we were told that the roast beef of Ostend was really roast horse.

The Crown hotel, Ostend's finest, had suffered at the hands of the Germans. The manager showed us through two floors, pointing out where wall ornaments, chandeliers and everything of copper had been torn off.

All wool had been plucked from the mattresses. Nine thousand bottles of wine had been carted away. But the hotel had receipts for everything stolen!

Nor was this all. The hotel was set apart for German officers, and it had been a great trial to endure the tyrannical mood of most of them.

GLAD COLONIES ARE FREED

Native Chiefs in Former German Possessions Hope They Will Remain Under British Rule.

London.—German cruelty exercised toward the natives of her former colonies is outlined in the statements of native chiefs in the Samoan Islands, the Kameruns, Togoland, Southwest Africa, and East Africa, in a white book published by the colonial office. The statements show that the natives everywhere hope to remain under British rule.

In a few cases the chiefs said they were afraid to say anything lest their land be restored to the Germans, who had threatened them with what they would do when the war was over. This fear, however, failed to prevent a virtually unanimous appeal for retention of the British flag.

The horrors of the German rule in Southwest Africa, the white book says, already are too well known to require repetition, but the same system of tyranny was found in other German colonies in a greater or less degree.

The burden running through all the statements of the natives of Togoland and the Kameruns is "flogging, flogging, flogging," especially in connection with forced labor on plantations.

"WICKEDEST CITY" IS DEAD

Hopewell, Va., Where Sprung Up Like a Klondike Town, Dies Sudden Death.

Hopewell, Va.—Hopewell, the "wickedest city," which arose out of nothing like a town of the Klondike three and a half years ago, has died a sudden death.

The great powder mills of the Du Ponts, which provided sinews of war, are being dismantled. Forty thousand inhabitants of the town have begun an exodus. In a few months the cornfields from which the town sprang will be restored. Only stories of the great fires of unbelievable vice and pistol duels will survive.

The E. I. du Pont de Nemours Powder company built a $75,000,000 powder plant and Hopewell grew up with it in a few months. Destroyed by fire once, it was rebuilt. Cornfields sold for $20,000 an acre. Dance halls, gambling rooms and saloons brought desperate men into the town. Revolvers were a part of every man's equipment. A woman did not dare go on the streets unescorted. The old strong-arm law of the Wild West days prevailed. And now the inhabitants are scattering to the four corners of the country.

THE LATE FRANK P. MERRILL OF BLUEHILL

A HANCOCK COUNTY BOOK.

"Skipper John of the Nimbus" by a former Lamoine Man.

Readers of THE AMERICAN are interested to learn of the book, "Skipper John of the Nimbus," written by Raymond McFarland, formerly of Lamoine. It is a story of adventure of the deep-sea fisherman, and local readers have no difficulty in recognizing, under the fictitious name of Comberton, the town where the opening chapters are laid, and find interest in characters which, if not counterparts of well-known people of the town, are at least true to type.

Seven years ago Mr. McFarland wrote "The History of New England Fisheries." During his early life he sailed from Gloucester with the mackerel fleet, and writes with a knowledge of his subject gained by hard experience.

"Skipper John of the Nimbus" has met with a flattering reception at the hands of the book reviewers. The New York Tribune says of it:

If we were inclined to draw comparisons, we might say that it is to be bracketed along with Kipling's "Captains Courageous." Certainly not since that memorable volume have we met with a "Down East" fishing story that more favorably impressed us than this. There is not a false note in it, nor an uncertain bit of drawing.

The Springfield Republican says: For his first story, "Skipper John of the Nimbus," Raymond McFarland turns to the perilous and romantic pursuits of the American deep-sea fishing fleet. He tells a most entertaining tale, spiced with dangerous exploits, healthy rivalries, and a battle of wills with constituted authority. A breathless interest holds the reader from the outset. The author seems to know intimately the fishermen and their hazardous calling. This, with his keen intuition for well-restrained dramatic effect, makes the story a leader in its field.

The Macmillan Co., New York, are the publishers; price $1.50. Miss J. A. Thompson of Ellsworth has the book on sale.

Catarhal Deafness Cannot Be Cured
by local applications, as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure catarrhal deafness, and that is by a constitutional remedy.

Catarhal deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the eustachian tube. When this tube is inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed, deafness is the result. Unless the inflammation can be reduced and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever. Many cases of deafness are caused by catarrh, which is an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces. Hall's Catarrh Medicine acts through the blood on the mucous surfaces of the system.

We will give one hundred dollars for any case of catarrhal deafness that cannot be cured by Hall's Catarrh Medicine. Circulars free. All druggists, 7c.

HELD PRISONER FOR FOUR YEARS

French Judge Returns to Battered Remains of Cambrai Home.

HID PRICELESS CITY RECORD

Refused to Leave Post When Hun Hordes Poured Through His Court-try—Tells of Cruelties Inflicted by Invaders.

Paris.—There reached Paris recently a fine-looking old French gentleman, sad-eyed, hollow-cheeked. For four years he had been held prisoner by the Germans in the city of Cambrai. He had seen the Hun kaiser three times passing through the streets of his city which previously had been swept by the French women. Night after night he had been forced to go and sit in the railroad stations of the city while the British bombed them. He had seen his friends, people once wealthy and of high birth, sent out to dig trenches, to bury the dead and to cultivate and weed the fields. For two years he had only soup and cocoa for his dinner and a semi-monthly allowance of three-quarters of a pound of meat and black bread.

Henri Bergier reached Paris just as the news came from the front that British and American troops had freed his home. As soon as he is strong enough to travel again he will return there to find, if possible, the priceless records of the city which he hid in 1914 when the Huns swept across Belgium and invaded northern France.

Stuck to His Post.
As a judge of a tribunal or court of Cambrai, Bergier refused to leave his post when the German hordes poured through his country in August, 1914. By a trick of chance he had just sent his wife and three daughters to Boulogne-sur-Mer, on the coast of France, for a holiday and was planning to join them early in September. The meeting was deferred just four years. He was captured, but was spared the bitterness of seeing his family subjected to the humiliations which came to the other women of Cambrai. His wife and daughters at once volunteered for hospital service and worked so heroically for three years that they were decorated by the French government with the medal "des epidemics et du devouement."

The story which Bergier brought back was one of want and suffering. The Germans held him as hostage so he was not maltreated. Whenever the city was bombed, however, he was sent with three other judges, also held as hostages, to sit in the railway stations so that they would be killed if the traffic centers were destroyed.

The people of the city who did not hold official positions were treated more summarily. The women were all made to do menial work of some kind, such as sweeping the streets of the city or cultivating and weeding the fields. The young boys and men were sent out to dig trenches and to bury the dead. No one was allowed to leave his lodgings after seven o'clock at night, and no lights were allowed at any time.

Turned Out of Homes.
Family after family was turned out of homes to make place for the wives of the German officers who came to stay in Cambrai with their husbands and for German actresses and singers who were brought from Germany to stage performances of grand opera and to make merry in the casinos. The prisoners were kept filled with "offenders." One woman was thrown into jail because she had hidden a copper vessel, a family heirloom, in defiance of the German order requisitioning everything of metal from the people. Another woman was arrested because she read a copy of a French paper which had been dropped into the city by allied airplanes.

Early in September Bergier was told that an exchange had been effected and he was to return to France. He would be permitted to take with him what belongings he could carry. He found an old baby carriage with two wheels off and patched it up with wheels from a dismantled gun. His clothing, though threadbare, still held together, but he had no shoes at all. He took the leather portfolio which his youngest daughter had used to carry to school and made a sort of footgear out of it, using for soles the belting from a machine in an abandoned factory.

Part of his journey to Belgium he made on foot, pushing his belongings along in the old baby carriage. Part he made by train.

From Belgium M. Bergier went to Switzerland, finally arriving in Paris where he rejoined his family.

HONORED BY FRENCH

Yankee Doctor Wins Commission
as Captain.

Highest-Ranked American Citizen in French Army During War.

Paris.—The highest-ranked American citizen in the French army during the present war is Dr. Henry Michel of Augusta, Ga., who earned a captain's commission in the service of our ally before transferring over to the United States army.

Doctor Michel came to France at the beginning of the war and volunteered in the French army. Owing to the crying need for surgeons, he was at once commissioned as a second lieutenant and assigned to a base hospital. His hard work and ability won him promotion to a first lieutenant after the Verdun offensive in the first half of 1916 when he was stationed at Troyes, the great evacuation center for the French wounded.

Afterward Doctor Michel was transferred to Lyons and was placed in command of a military hospital there and promoted to captain. The Foreign Legion has its base depot at Lyons, and Doctor Michel knew almost all of the Americans enlisted in that unit. He was also a great friend of United States Consul Jones at Lyons.

A year ago Doctor Michel offered his services to the A. E. F. and was sent to American Red Cross hospital No. 1 at Neuilly, the former American ambulance. He is also surgeon in chief of the American hospital for civilians in Neuilly.

Only a few other Americans have ever received commissions in the French army, and they were all second lieutenants with the exception of William Thaw of the Lafayette Escadrille, and Sweeney of the Foreign Legion and later of the tank corps, who were first lieutenants. The aviator pilots of the Lafayette Escadrille were only sergeants, with the exception of Dudley Hill, an adjutant. Lufbery was only a second lieutenant.

DOCTOR FOOLED BY TWINS

Candidates for Merchant Marine So Much Alike One of Them Is Examined Twice.

Boston, Mass.—Two nineteen-year-old brothers—James R. Miller and Earl W. Miller of Chadbourne, N. C.—are the twinliest twins that ever hit Uncle Sam's merchant marine training ship here.

The examining surgeon was the first to be fooled. First he examined James R. Then he turned to his desk to make out his record, taking for granted that James would pass to the next room. But he didn't. He thought there was more to come. And of course he was examined again. "Gosh," he thought, "they do a pretty thorough job here."

"Earl," said the doctor, still talking to James, "you sure are an image of your brother."

Just then Earl entered the room. "I'm through with you, James," said the doctor, speaking to Earl.

"Don't I get examined?" inquired Earl. And then a great light dawned on the doctor.

Work Certain for Heroes.

Olympia, Wash.—Placing 3,000,000 acres of arid land in this state under irrigation at a cost of $250,000,000 and furnishing work for thousands of returned soldiers and sailors is part of a plan being worked out by Gov. Ernest Lister. By this plan it is expected homes may be made for 50,000 families.

REFUSED TO BE BROTHERS

Attempt Later Made to Effect Reconciliation Spurned by Americans—
Corporal Who Refused to Work Hurled Down Mine Shaft.

London.—"When they took us prisoners they held revolvers to our heads and made us give them our shoes, but when the armistice came and we were set free a socialist leader made a speech to us, saying: 'We are now brothers.'"

This was what American soldiers who returned to London from Germany—the first to reach here after the signing of the armistice—had to say about the change in the attitude of their captors from the time they had fallen into German hands in April until they were released on November 12.

"When we were captured at Seicheprey," said Private James E. Pitochelli of Providence, "the German soldiers held pistols to the heads of some of us and demanded our shoes. I managed to hang on to mine, but others weren't so lucky. They had to walk barefooted through No Man's Land, cutting their feet badly" on barbed wire or pieces of shell. All of us had to walk 30 miles to the rear, where wooden shoes were given us, and no one was permitted to keep his boots. They told us—one general did—that they had attacked to get prisoners, but the next time they attacked the One Hundred and Second they would take no prisoners, because they had fought too fiercely."

This was corroborated by Private Frank Butler of New Haven.

Prisoners Exhibited.

The Americans were eventually taken to Friedrichsfeldt, and no opportunity was missed to show the American prisoners to the populace, for they were among the earliest to be taken.

These Americans were taken to a camp where there were prisoners from all the other allied countries, and though there afterward seemed to be an attempt to single out Americans for better treatment, according to the returned men now here, they fared much the same as the others during the earlier part of their imprisonment. Until their own food parcels began to arrive they got considerable food from the generous British and other allied campmates.

More than 30 were detailed to work in coal and salt mines, and one man, Corporal Lucien, who, it was said, refused to work in a mine when ordered to do so, was marched off to the pit head and given another chance to decide what he would do by the two Prussian guards who had him in charge. When he again stoutly refused, saying he was not required, as an under officer, to do so, he was thrown down the shaft and killed. The burial was witnessed, his comrades said, by a British sailor, who told about it on the following day.

Eventually the Americans were taken to the prison camp at Opladen. For their work they got six cents a day.

Armistice Starts Riot.

On November 9 they learned of the armistice. On that day riots were precipitated in the town in which the Americans were stationed, and marines had been hurried up to quell the disorders. On November 11 word came that the armistice had been signed and that all the prisoners were now free.

It was arranged shortly afterward that they were to be sent to Holland for transportation to England with English prisoners. The men were permitted to go through the town at will, and the people, as well as their former guards, were anxious to fraternize, but got short shrift from the released men.

A German who styled himself as an international Socialist, went to the camp to tell the prisoners how glad he was that the war was over. "We are all brothers now," he said with much gusto, but this was too much to swallow after months of hard work, poor food and overbearing treatment, and one of the prisoners greeted this exclamation with boos and groans. The Socialist departed as disconsolate as did Sir Roger Casement when he ineffectually tried to curry the favor of Irish prisoners in other camps.

An uneventful trip to Holland ensued, and then the men were taken in charge by the British Red Cross and went to Hull along with British Tommies who had been in the camp with them.

Gives Three Sons to Service.

Newnan, Ga.—A. D. Harris of Newnan has given three sons to his country's fight for freedom, all of whom volunteered early in the war. Alvin H. Harris, Marine corps, was killed in action at Bouresches, and his courage was warmly praised by his superior officers. Marvin D. Harris was accidentally killed during a storm. William D. Harris, Marine corps, was severely wounded at Chateau-Thierry.

ORLAND.

Saturday morning about 6 o'clock the excellent dwelling house of Mrs. Rose L. Ames, on the Castine road was burned. Because of the call to service in France of her son Frank, Mrs. Ames had closed her house for the winter, and has been with friends in East Orland. She was at the house Thursday afternoon, but did not, while there, have a fire or a lighted lamp, and the origin of the fire is a mystery. The house and contents were wholly destroyed. Although there is some insurance on the building and furniture, the loss is large. There were valuable of interest, brought from foreign parts by members of the family and the accumulation of years, which cannot be replaced, besides the value, which the insurance did not cover. Any ill fortune which comes to Mrs. Ames is greatly regretted, for she is highly esteemed in her home and the community, where she has always lived.

Strange Bequest.

A strange bequest was made by a retired soap manufacturer recently. He left the sum of a little more than eleven hundred dollars, to found a home for "homeless cats and dogs," but stipulated that the money is not to be touched until the year 2163, by when the donor estimates it will have increased to two hundred million dollars.
